A detailed map of London, Westminster & Southwark 1270 to 1300

In 1300 London was at its medieval peak
It was a city of 80,000 souls, with more than a hundred parish churches and numerous monasteries, nunneries and friaries. London Bridge was the wonder of Europe. Edward I was enlarging the Tower and realigning the city walls. St Paul’s Cathedral and Westminster Abbey were being rebuilt. And nobles and ecclesiastics were building their London residences.

An original insight into London at a high point in its medieval history. Street directory, introduction to the map, illustrations and historical information.